Why PeoplePM®?

We often hear about the dismal rate of project failure. Companies continue to struggle to get projects to work.

Strange isn't it? You take a group of executives, often very successful in their careers to date, put them onto a project, and they fail.

But is this really all that surprising?

Traditional project management techniques are effective at managing large scale capital intensive projects. But these techniques are less effective in the dynamic & fluid environments found within most organizations these days.

We wanted to find out what made project managers successful in this new environment. We found that it didn't matter all that much if you had a sophisticated project management software system, or were utilizing the latest project management methodology . . . they can help, it's just that something else was more important.

What mattered was if the project manager possessed certain attributes. We identified each of these five critical attributes and created PeoplePM®.

Course Outline

PeoplePM® Overview

The course begins with an overview of PeoplePM®:

- Origins of PeoplePM®
- How PeoplePM® is different to current project management methodologies & approaches.
- Overview of each of the five PeoplePM® attributes of successful project managers
- Why PeoplePM® attributes are the most important skills for project managers

PeoplePM® Modules

The course then moves on to an in-depth review of each of the five PeoplePM® attributes.

Each module commences with an overview of the concepts & theory behind each attribute. We will then use the powerful READY-AIM-FIRE construct to create simple and easy to utilize "Behavior Blueprints" for each attribute. These Behavior Blueprints will become your guide for how you should think & act on your projects.

You'll then get the chance to apply your understanding of the Behavior Blueprints in a case study. The case studies will dramatize typical project manager situations. Templates will be used to facilitate progress through the Behavior Blueprints as taught in each session.

The focus on Behavior Blueprints is a major innovation in the teaching of soft skills. These Behavior Blueprints enable high level concepts to be translated into easily adopted step-by-step approaches. Each of these Behavior Blueprints will teach participants a new way to think & act.

The Five Critical Attributes of Successful Project Managers

Anticipation

Change is constant and project managers need to know how to anticipate it. Learn how to:

- consider how 'futurists' predict the future
- review selected futures techniques
- consider the 'real' implications of your objectives
- develop mitigation approaches to manage potential derailers
- utilize enablers to achieve maximum benefit

Organization

Project managers need to be organized to ensure project efficiency. Learn how to:

- work smarter, not just harder
- consider organization tools & techniques
- select the time management technique that is right for you
- get situations under control
- 'change the game' by reducing urgency &/or effort of a task

Communication

Project managers need to communicate to get work done & facilitate objectives. Learn how to:

- understand that communication is much more than outward verbal expression
- consider the other party before making any communication
- focus on structure to ensure your message is easily understood
- develop a simple process to ensure you get your point across every time

Pragmatism

Projects are always time constrained and project managers need an effective decision making process. Learn how to:

- consider the decision making process
- review selected decision making & analysis methods
- identify & prioritize the right decision criteria
- develop a process to make decisions & assess objections

Empathy

Project managers need to understand other people to get work done. Learn how to:

- consider the role of emotional intelligence
- assess the personal traits & situation of other people before acting
- develop a process to define what you need and then determine who can help you
- develop action plans to get what you want
